PROP
65

— You may have noticed the Prop 65 warnings on some of our products:

WARNING: This product contains one or more chemicals known to the State of California to cause cancer.

What is Proposition 65?

Proposition 65 requires businesses to provide warnings to Californians about exposures to chemicals that cause cancer, birth defects or other reproductive harm. These chemicals can be in the products that Californians purchase, in their homes or workplaces, or that are released into the environment. By requiring that this information be provided, Proposition 65 enables Californians to make informed decisions about their exposures to these chemicals. Proposition 65 requires California to publish a list of chemicals known to cause cancer, birth defects or other reproductive harm. This list, which must be updated at least once a year, has grown to include approximately 900 chemicals since it was first published in 1987. Proposition 65 became law in November 1986, when California voters approved it by a 63-37 percent margin. The official name of Proposition 65 is the Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Enforcement Act of 1986.

What Chemical?

The chemical used in a limited number of Armor Guys Polyurethane coated products that prompted the prop 65 warning: N,N-Dimethylformamide – Type of Toxicity: Cancer
You can find the warning on the product description for the gloves it pertains too.

Why?

Proposition 65 does not ban the sale of products containing these chemicals; it only requires that they are labeled with a warning. Additionally, these warnings do not necessarily mean certain products are unsafe. Many products across California are also labeled with the Prop 65 warning and even food products such as coffee.

Here are some gloves that have the prop 65 warning:
